1. The Duty of Good Faith

The trustee's duty of good faith requires that the trustee act honestly and with undivided loyalty to the interests of the trust and its beneficiary (ies). In essence, this means that the trustee cannot put his own interests (frequently referred to as self-dealing), or the interests of third parties, ahead of the interests of the trust. Common examples of violations of the duty of loyalty are where the trustee attempts to secure a material advantage to himself, to a relation, or to a third party in a transaction on behalf of the trust

2. The Duty of Prudence;

The trustee's duty of prudence descends in part from the duty of good faith, requiring that the trustee act with due care, diligence, and skill in managing the trust. Although there are various formulations of this duty, most are similar to the following:

The standard or measure of care, diligence, and skill required of a trustee in the administration of a trust is that of an ordinarily prudent person in the conduct of his or her private affairs under similar circumstances, and with a similar object in view.

This duty applies to both affirmative and negative conduct on the part of the trustee, including the timing of management decisions. For example, in the context of a sale of real estate that is held in trust, the trustee must make the sale for the best price and on the best terms that are reasonably attainable. Where there is a significant opportunity to benefit the trust through the disposition of trust property, the trustee can be held liable if she negligently fails to consider the opportunity or waits too long to dispose of trust property, leaving the trust with de-valued property. However, the trustee could also breach his duty of prudence by selling trust property prematurely (such as where the property would have earned greater returns in the future through an alternative use, or where it had significant potential for appreciation).

3. Trust Fund: - The Trust Funds shall consist of the corpus of the Trust, gifts, donation and contributions received by the Trust from within India and abroad. They also shall consist of grants, aids, sponsorships and contributions of the like. All gifts in kind including properties of an immovable nature shall also belong to the Trust as assets thereof. The Founder Trustee will contribute 25000/- for the Corpus fund initially.

4. Duration of Trust: - The creation of the Trust is irrevocable and its duration perpetual and permanent, subject to other residuary clauses of this Deed.

5. Accounts and Audit: -

i. The trustee shall keep proper books of account of all the assets, liabilities and income and expenditure of the Trust and shall prepare an income and expenditure account and Balance Sheet for every year as on the last day of March.

II. The Accounts of every year shall be audited by a Chartered Accountants or a firm of Chartered Accountants who shall be appointed for the purpose by the Trustee and the audited accounts shall be placed at a meeting of the Trustee, which shall be held before the end of the succeeding year.

The bank accounts shall be operated by the Settler/Founder and any one from the Governing body, nominated by the Settler/Founder.

7. Amendment: - Notwithstanding anything contained in this Deed, no amendment to the memorandum and rules and regulations of the Trust shall be made which may prove to be repugnant to the provisions of Section 2(15), 11 to 13 and 80 - G of the income - tax Act, 1961.

8. Dissolution Clause: - In the event of dissolution or winding up of the Trust, the assets remaining as on the date of dissolution shall under no circumstances be distributed among the Trustees but the same shall be institution whose objects are similar to those of the Trust.
